Dear Sir

Blood on their Hands

1. We act on behalf of Pan Macmillan South Africa (Pty) Ltd and Ms Jessica Pitchford ("our clients").
2. We have been handed a copy of your email of 18 October 2016.
3. Our instructions are that our clients stand by the content of the book, Blood on their Hands ("the book"). The book was published by our clients lawfully.
4. We are instructed further that our clients made repeated attempts to contact your client, without success.
5. Our clients deny the allegations contained in your letter including, inter alia, the following:
 - 5.1 That the book describes "false incidents and unproven allegations if not plain blatant lies" about your client;
 - 5.2 That our clients acted without professional ethics and/or did not attempt to contact your client; and
 - 5.3 That our clients proceeded with publishing "gossip, false allegations and crude errors" regarding your client;
6. In the circumstances, our clients will not publish an apology to your client as requested in your email.
7. However, our clients are prepared to resend you a list of questions which they attempted to send to your client and will consider any responses for potential inclusion in a subsequent edition of the book.
